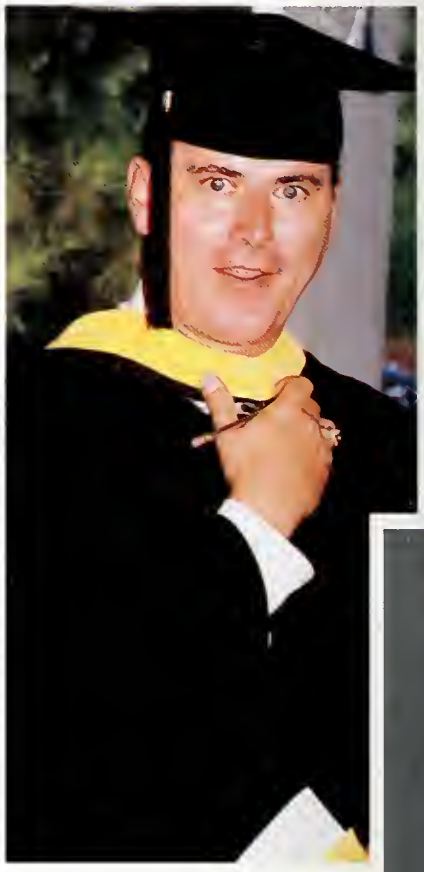
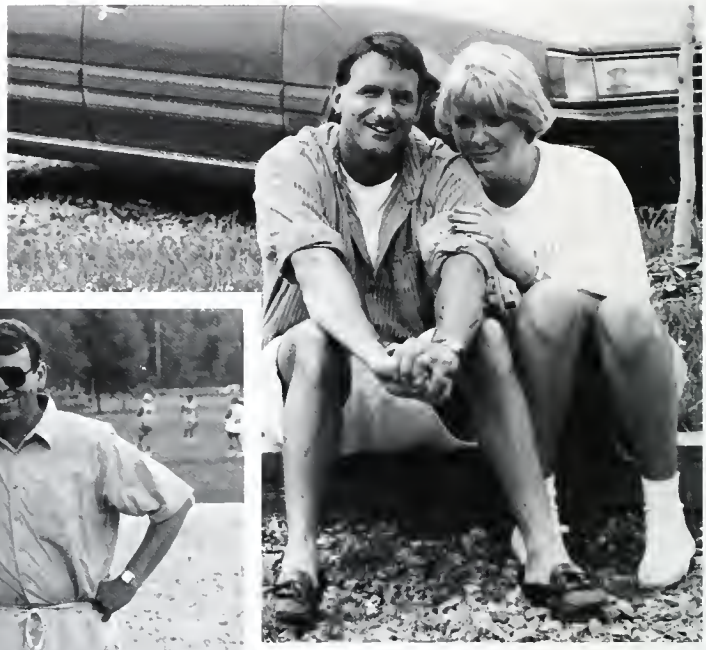
COMMENCEMENT



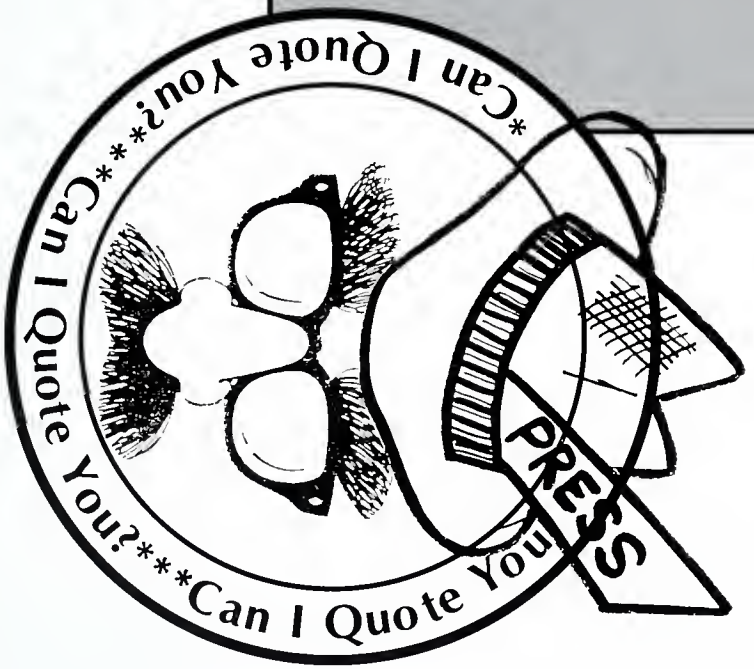
NINETY-ONE

Graduation's strange. We elected to call it Commencement this year to underscore the split personality of the occasion — which, like Janus, god of doors, looks down the past and toward the future at the same time. It's a grand night for the people who come to make it happen. It's memorably hot — always: there's just something about doing this in August, we suppose. It's the end; and it's all beginnings. We're happy for 'em; and they're justifiably proud and happy themselves. And there's still more to it than that, always more . . . Remember those serious faces.

29 August 1991



BEYOND THE CLASS ROOM



FIELD DAYS

QUOTE

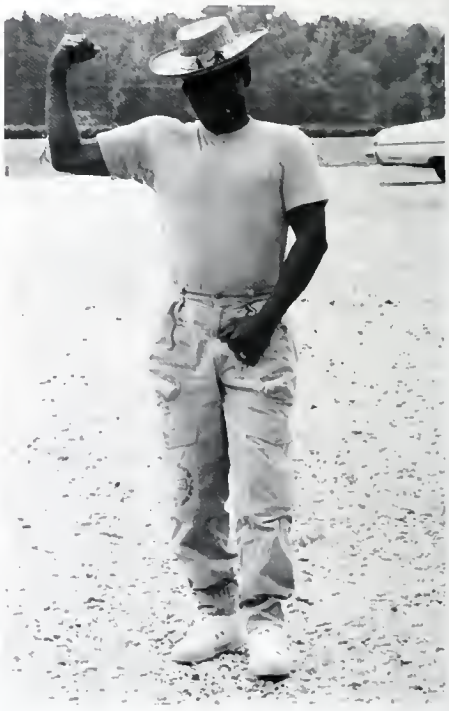
Don't flip me or I'll kill you!
Flat busted.
I have NOTHING to say!
Team work, baby!
I'll fit right in out there.
What was I supposed to do, just stand there?
We're playing by RCCC rules here.
HURRY! HURRY! HURRY!
Don't worry about gettin' wet!

UNQUOTE

You don't have to be born Catholic, do ya?

Making a statement.

Call this a statement?



Can I quote you?

Whadja mean, no shagging?

I should've paid attention in driver's ed.

All Hallows

A feather? I thought it was a duckling.

Not much . . . just vegetating.

& All That

Is this gonna go on my record?

No, no. Sitting ovation . . . It's worth that much.

WE GAVE!

Embarrassing Moments:

a. While walking on the boardwalk the wind caught my skirt and lifted it above my head. The applause was really unnecessary.

b. Walking into the wrong classroom and not leaving.

c. When I was a senior in high school, the guys pulled my hair-piece off and hung it from the light in the main hall.

d. When I had an involved exchange with Mr. Clodfelter only to learn that in no way was this man Mr. Clodfelter.

SGA

SGA's main objective this year was to bring both campuses together. Given that the South campus is still a very new addition to RCCC, SGA has been trying to meet goals by combining school activities for both campuses.

Committees were created for such activities as the Ms. RCCC contest, Field Days and all the holiday dinners.

To keep current with new ideas about other schools and ways to improve communications with the student body, SGA members attend regular conventions and division meetings.

The Phi Theta Kappa Society, with more than 850 chapters nationally and internationally, only serves two year colleges. RCCC's chapter was chartered in May of 1991 with 90 enrolled members. The Society supports fundraisers, such as candy sales and the Valentine's Day Raffle. The money raised is used for club functions like initiation ceremonies and regional and national conventions. In its first year on campus, the RCCC chapter has already won the "One-Star Charter" award and an Honorable Mention for "Best New Chapter."

PHI BETA LAMBDA

The Phi Beta Lambda Business Club of Rowan-Cabarrus Community College is a student leadership organization open to all majors. It was formed for the purpose of providing students with further education and insight into areas of business outside the regular classroom experience. Phi Beta Lambda helps students develop leadership skills by operating as a business, giving members firsthand experience in business management.

Phi Beta Lambda members also have the opportunity to attend State and National Leadership Conferences, which are usually paid for through the club's business activities. These conferences offer training seminars, academic and business competition, awards, and the chance to interact with other students and business professionals.

By taking advantage of the training and experience offered in Phi Beta Lambda as well as the business contacts developed through its business activities and the Phi Beta Lambda Professional Division, Phi Beta Lambda members can get a head start on their future in the business world.

AFF TRUM

I think the book you've just leafed through is a page in school history — the last one put together by hand. If all goes according to plan, the '93 SPECTRUM will be on line.

But this is just technique, and publishing has always been two things: the ideas of people executed by current technology. A yearbook reflects the same institution every year (which changes over time); and each year it's assembled by different people (whose purpose remains essentially the same).

This year's book has made some radical departures from our last several volumes. We hope you like the new look, find it readable, interesting, honest about the school. The '92 staff had a great many ideas, lots of energy, and (for a change) an experienced editor. I think you can see all that on the pages themselves. If the book is terrific, it's because they were — my heartfelt thanks to each of them.

Our collective gratitude as well to all the people who don't owe this project a thing and are still so generous: Ken Green for pix, processing, printing and patience beyond the call; the Business Office for administrative support; the South Campus staff for taking care of business; Bill Hahn, as usual, for ideas, critiques, friendship. At Jostens, thanks to JoAnn Mount (née Thomas), as usual, for never making it seem like work; and Terry Poovey, for never making any of it seem like it's my fault, even when I know it is. Thanks to Keith Cline at Holyfield Studios for taking our pictures anyway, and to The Post for AP photos.

Thanks to the LRC staff for a Motown moment. Thanks to all who said we could quote 'em and proved by their faith that the press doesn't have to be the enemy. See you through the viewfinder.
